

Art as Therapy

Monday, 12th July 2021 at 2.30 pm on Zoom

Lizzy Rowe is an art historian who studied at the Courtauld Institute in London before joining English Heritage as a guidebook editor. She currently lives in Oxford where she teaches Art History, as well as giving guided tours and talks. She is a knowledgeable and enthusiastic speaker on a wide variety of related subjects. On her topic of 'Art as Therapy' she will share with us her delight in a range of images, all of which cause pleasure and may lift us above the more mundane aspects of life. The talk is lavishly illustrated. Some of the pictures will be familiar, others will widen our horizons. Lizzy will be happy to answer questions at the end of the talk.
